

Bioeconomy, green job and education

The role of a trade union

Jesper Lund-Larsen
United Federation of Danish Workers

Bioeconomy, green job and education

From grass to biomass

EU Bioeconomy Stakeholder conference

8-9 October 2014 Turin

Green jobs and education

Will it be possible to create Green jobs?

- Blue biomass
- Green biomass
- Yellow biomass
- Brown biomass
- Other kind of biomass

Green jobs and education

Education and training

- Professional training
- University education
- Labor market training

Green jobs and education

Blue biomass

- Fish discard and fish waste
- Macroalgae
- Seeweed
 - Creating jobs in coastal regions
 - Technology export potential
- Education of people in the sector

Green jobs and education

Green Biomass

- Grass, plants and parts of plants
 - Feed and foodingredients sector
 - Refining sector
 - Technology export potential
- Alternative protein crops
 - Technology export potential
- Education of people in the sector

Green jobs and education

Yellow Biomass

- Straw and other cellulosic products
 - Jobcreation across the chain from field over industry to end user
 - Tecnology export potential
- Education of people in the sector
 - Farmer and farmworkers
 - Industrial worker
 - Researchers

Green jobs and education

Brown Biomass

- Wood and secondary grades
 - Jobcreation from forest to industry
 - Tecnology export potential
- Education of people in the sector
 - Forestry workers and other
 - Industrial worker
 - Researchers

Green jobs and education

Other kind of Biomass

- Residues from meat processing and dairy
 - Job creation across the chain
 - Technology export potential
- Education of people in the sector
 - Foodindustry workers
 - Researchers

Green jobs and education

Other kind of Biomass

- Sorted and unsorted municipal waste
 - Job creation across the chain
 - Technology export potential
- Education of people in the sector
 - Renovations workers
 - Workers at waste sorting sites
 - Researchers

Bioeconomy, green jobs and education

- Jesper.lund.larsen@3f.dk
- www.groennejob.dk